TED MUEHLING's bronze candlesticks are surely one of the most beautiful examples of contemporary design in recent history. Muehling is best known as a jewellery designer and his Howard Street studio and shop in lower Manhattan has become a destination for sensitive jewellery aficionados. Muehling's first objects were designed for the German porcelain manufactory Nymphenburg and were based on his signature nature-influenced forms. These candlesticks represent a collaboration with the important architectural hardware manufacturer E.R.Butler & Co. whose cutting edge technology allowed for their creation. This special edition of the bronze candlesticks with a golden egg is produced especially for On Pedder and is limited to 10 pairs.
