Lantern 4170-II-3

The Brass Family

The body of this lantern is made up of simple cast brass bars which are polished and bear an antique finish. The composure of the lantern is very simple but still the individual parts of the frame breath the air of baroque splendour and grandeur.

It is typical for the Baroque period and can be found in countless Viennese mansions. For over 200 years it was our most prominent piece to use in hallways, entrées and staircases.
