Chandelier 6865-20 "Fingers"

The Seventies Family

This fixture is a development from our idea of using Swarovski Crystal on lighting fixtures. Its most striking detail is the cast brass fingers and the delicate frames with crystals mounted on a wheel-shaped structure. The finger's mould was made by melting Styrofoam into the desired shape thus arriving at the molten impression of the piece. The grids are made from slim brass bars where the crystals are attached with wires the usual sturdy way.

As the "eye" of the chandelier is empty the ring is fit with multiple brass chains in matching finish. The multiple suspension chains connect at a single point at a canopy and can be installed like a regular chandelier. Other layouts of suspension are possible.
