

BISCUIT – ELEPHANT

White, biscuit

Design: August Göhring, 2002

length 40 cm · height 24 cm · product no. 18.604

When August Göhring started out as a sculptor at Nymphenburg in 1914, he was mainly occupied with the reconstruction of historical figures. However, his precise, analytical perspective of man and animal soon saw him designing his own figures. Prominent examples, such as this 24 centimetre high elephant with raised trunk, a design dating from 1936, are among the manufactory's most successful models. Since 2002, it is also being produced in biscuit porcelain.
