Wolfgang von Wersin was an artist without airs and graces. He designed all his vases and services to make them perfectly suitable for different painting methods. And that still applies today. Delicate flowers of life can currently be found meandering across the different Lotus pieces. Viennese graphic and product designer Sebastian Menschhorn has translated ancient oriental motifs into contemporary designs, first using the tattoo-like blooms on the backs of mice, pugs and elephants. As of 2011, they are also now available on services.
